(U) Two Orange County men, a former police chief and his partner in organizing Stop the Steal rallies, have been indicted along with members of the Three Percenters militia for their roles in the 6 January US Capitol insurrection. Alan Hostetter, former chief of the La Habra police department, faces charges along with Russell Taylor, Erik Scott Warner, Felipe Antonio “Tony” Martinez, Derek Kinnison, and Ronald Mele on multiple counts. Though all are charged with being in restricted areas of the Capitol, Warner, is solely indicted for entering the building amongst the group, via a broken window. Kinnison and Warner are charged with destroying evidence, while Taylor also faces a weapons count for carrying a knife with a blade longer than 3 inches. The grand jury indictment alleges the men conspired on social media prior to the riot about travel plans that included discussion of bringing weapons to the Capitol. On the day of the riot, they breached off-limits areas of the Capitol and encouraged others to do so as well, posting videos and pictures as they went, the indictment says.

(U) Kabul – The ISIS-Khorasan affiliate (ISIS-K), has claimed responsibility for Tuesday's attack on international demining charity, the Halo Trust, that left 10 people dead and 16 others wounded, the SITE Intelligence Group reported Wednesday. The attack began at 9.50 p.m. local time, when a group of armed men entered a HALO camp in the northern Baghlan province "and went bed-to-bed murdering members of The HALO Trust," the charity's CEO James Cowan said. Around 110 men from local communities were in the camp at the time. Cowan said the gunmen demanded to know which team members were from the Shiite Hazara ethnic minority, adding that "when our staff refused to name them, the gunmen went from room to room murdering our staff." The Hazara have previously been targeted in attacks by ISIS-K, including last month's attack on a girls school in Kabul that left at least 85 people dead.
